

The Packers Century Series

Books by Jim Rice

"For Jim, this has been a labor of love. Detailing every game played by pro football's most famous team is quite a challenge. A game-by-game walk through the seasons of this historical Packers franchise is a treasure for every fan, and those fans to come."

-- Kevin Harlan, Award-Winning Sports Broadcaster

"One hundred seasons. Imagine that! And there are Packers fans that have hung on every point of every one of those games, even before their times, because of work like the Packers Century Series. If you love football, love the NFL and of course, love the Packers, you will treasure the nuggets Jim Rice includes in his writing."

-- Gary Ellerson, RB, Green Bay Packers 1985-1986;
Wisconsin Sports Broadcaster

"Jim Rice is very likely the only sports historian to actually write about every Packers game ever played on PackersCentury.com, and he's done it masterfully."

-- Eric Goska, Author: "Green Bay Packers: A Measure of Greatness" and "Strength in Numbers: Quarter by Quarter with the Green Bay Packers"

ISBN – @ packerscentury.com
Format – Paperback
Publication - @ packerscentury.com

Jim Rice

It was the 1961 NFL Championship Game that first caught author and football historian, Jim Rice's attention. A native New Yorker, Jim watched a successful football team from small Green Bay, Wisconsin annihilate the powerful New York Giants 37-0. From that point on, Jim was hooked on sports, especially the storied histories of the Green Bay Packers and New York Yankees. Jim became a history teacher (no surprise), coach and school superintendent. A graduate of Marquette University, Jim began to work on his Packers passion full-time after Super Bowl XLV. He resides in Wisconsin with his wife, Sue.

The Packers Century Series

This historical collection of books is about rivalries and championships. It includes The Packers Century Project which reviews every Packers game ever played and may be found at packerscentury.com. The project is the premier resource for over 1,400 games and is a favorite of fans and trivia buffs.

Jim Rice enjoys talking all things Packers and would love to share some of those stories with you. Contact him to meet your group at jslindy1@gmail.com.

PackersCentury.com